Ma as the doorbell rang. It was Peter and his little brother.

“Come in,” said Ma. “You can share the cookies.” “That’s two each,” said Victoria and Sam. “They look as good as your Grandma’s,” said Peter. “And smell as good.” “No one makes cookies like Grandma,” said Ma as the doorbell rang. It was Joy and Simon with their four cousins.

“Come in,” said Ma. “You can share the cookies.” “That’s one each,” said Sam and Victoria. “They smell as good as your Grandma’s,” said Joy. “And looks as good,” said Simon. “No one makes cookies like Grandma,” said Ma as the doorbell rang. And rang. “Oh dear,” said Ma as the children stared at the cookies on their plates. “Perhaps you’d better eat them before we open the door.”
“We’ll wait” said Sam.

It was Grandma with an enormous tray of cookies. “How nice to have so many friends to share them with,” said Grandma. “It’s good thing I made a lot!” “And no one makes cookies like Grandma,” said Ma as the doorbell ran.
